WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

From the beginning the only man considered for the post of an authority for Director-General was the honorable William I. Buchanan; and the Directors of the Exposition were greatly gratified when he consented to resign from the office of United States Minister to the Argentine Republic to take up the burdens and responsibilities of the management of the exposition.

Mr. Buchanan, who was a National Commissioner from Iowa to the World's Columbian Exposition, was the first Chief of Department selected at Chicago, where he not only directed the affairs of the Department of Agriculture, Forestry and Live Stock, but was a most sagacious and helpful adviser in the general management of the Exposition, and was a recognized force in a large organization containing many strong men. The record of his work at that time bears abundant testimony to his uncommon executive ability.

In the early part of President Cleveland's second administration Mr. Buchanan was appointed United States Minister to the Argentine Republic—a mission that he filled with great distinction to November 1, 1899. As a diplomat he is more widely and favorably known throughout the Latin-American countries than any other representative of the United States. During the latter part of his diplomatic service the Argentine Republic and Chile were brought to the brink of war by a long standing boundary dispute. For a time a peaceful adjustment appeared to be hopeless. Finally a scheme of arbitration was devised and Mr. Buchanan was made the arbiter, whose decision was accepted as binding on both parties. His fair, judicious, tactful treatment of the question in controversy inspired both governments to convey to him expressions of their warm appreciation and high esteem. The facts regarding this happy outcome of an international quarrel that had long excited the countries of the southern continent, made a strong impression on the people of those countries, and earned for the United States Minister an enviable reputation throughout South America. Among other results of his diplomatic service at Buenos Ayres was the successful negotiation of an extradition treaty and a commercial convention between the Argentine Republic and the United States.

With his invaluable individual experience at the World's Columbian Exposition, his rare executive force and his thorough knowledge of the conditions, customs and characteristics of the people of South America, Mr. Buchanan has come to the Pan-American Exposition singularly well equipped for the successful direction of its affairs.

CANADA'S KILLED MILITARY BAND.

The government of Canada has at last, after repeated efforts, been prevailed upon to permit the celebrated 4th Highlanders' Regiment Band, of Toronto, to make an official concert tour of America, under their leader, Mr. John Slatter. The tour is under the direction of Mr. T. P. J. Power, who for two years was business manager in America of Godfrey's British Guards' Band. The band will appear in Frankfort, it is understood, on November 24th. Those who have heard the band in their regular concert programme (in which is added some Highland dancing and bag-piping by the regiment's own talent), say it is worth going many miles to hear their exquisite concert and military music, while their costumes which have led to their pet name of "Kilties," are the most striking and unique worn by any military organization on the continent. Frankfort is to be congratulated in having secured them, as much public interest has been aroused.

(In memoriam.)

THE DEATH OF EDWARD C. DRANE.

Edward Crabbe Drane, second and youngest son of Judge George C. and Mary Shipman Drane, was born in Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 12, 1871, and died near Elkins, West Va., Oct. 5, 1900.

Possessing rare business gifts, he entered commercial life at an early age and rose rapidly and steadily in his career, so that upon the organization of the State National Bank of this city, he was given one of its most responsible positions in his nineteenth year. Conscientious attention to business, and a burden of outside cares began to tell upon his health, but the repeated warnings of friends and employers were unheeded in his devotion to what he believed his duty, and no rest could be induced to take until the spring of 1897, when an entire breaking down of his whole system, but especially of the nerves, compelled him to give up and seek, in a trip to the East and afterwards to Alaska, renewed strength. Soon after his return, in the fall of 1898, as he supposed fully restored, he accepted a place in one of the largest banks of New York City, but a few short weeks of work and confinement brought on an even severer nervous disorder and collapse than the first. This was followed by another period of rest, another attempt at work, and another breaking down. For sake of outdoor exercise and mental quiet he accepted employment on the farm of a very dear friend, and afterwards, with him, a position in railroad construction in the mountains of West Virginia. Here his health and strength were rapidly, and all hoped, permanently repaired, but on Thursday morning last his old malady and enemy, in a severer form than ever before returned, and in the early hours of the night Reason and the Will having abdicated their rightful sway, rash impulse, now unrestrained, in blind revenge, destroyed the life in whose conduct, hitherto, it had been denied all part.

Though young in years Edward Drane—"Ned," many of his friends loved to call him—was pre-eminently a man among men. Joined to business abilities of the highest degree to honor and to truth. With the sternest consecration to duty, and a physical and moral courage unsurpassed, were coupled qualities but rarely linked—dignity, modesty, refined courtesy, a thoughtful consideration, a wide charity, an all embracing love and loveliness, the purity of life and thought, and the religious devotion of a woman. To him there belonged by the high right of inheritance and the yet higher one of his own intrinsic worth, without reserve and in all the fullness of its meaning, that highest of all titles—A Christian Gentleman!

If the words of the Master Himself be true—"By their fruits ye shall know them"—then indeed will the life of Edward Drane stand the highest of all tests, for in a rarely perfect degree were manifest in him "the fruits of the Spirit, which are these: Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance," and a cordial "Flesh with its affections and lusts."

In the loss of this noble son of most noble parentage, all hearts go out to the widowed mother, the bereaved sisters and brother in their great affliction, and we pray with all our strength that our Father's peace may be theirs.

How such a life could have met such an end is of the secret "things which belong to the Lord our God" alone; but while we cannot understand we can yet believe. "What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." To those who were acquainted with the intensity of his nature and the strained state of his whole mental and nervous system, the fact that his last days were spent in a successful attempt to protect and to guard the life of one of his fellowmen from the same fate as his own affords an all sufficient explanation; and so in this last and supreme act of his life—the act of death itself—of him, like of his Great Exemplar was it true, "He saved others, himself he could not save."

"Our little systems have their day; They have their day and cease to be: They are but broken lights of thee, And thou, O Lord, art more than they."

"For all we thought and loved and did, And hoped, and suffer'd, is but seed Of what in them is flower and fruit."

"Whereof the man that with me trod This planet, was a noble type, Appearing ere the times were ripe, That friend of mine, who lives in God,"

"That God which ever lives and loves, One God, one law, one element, And one far-off divine event, To which the whole creation moves,"

His friend and pastor, R. L. M'C. Ascension Rectory, Frankfort, Ky. Vigil of All-Saints, 1900.

THE LOVELIEST WOMAN IN AMERICA.

"Margaret Fuller once expressed the willingness to exchange her fine intellect and all her accomplishments for the beauty and attractiveness of Emily Marshall" (who had been her schoolmate), writes William Perrine of "The Loveliest Woman in All America" in the November Ladies Home Journal. "Miss Marshall stood before us a reversion to that faultless type of structure which artists have imagined in the past and to that ideal of loveliness of disposition which poets have fancied in the golden age," was the verdict of a Boston gallant, one of the fair beauty's neighbors, recorded in after life, when his judgment was unprejudiced. Such was the homage which the people of Boston would sometimes bestow upon Miss Marshall that one night when Daniel Webster, then beginning his career in the United States Senate, visited the Federal Street Theatre the applause which the audience showered upon him was not greater than the cheers with which it welcomed the divine Emily. In New York she caused such a sensation that one morning ten gentlemen at one time were seen in her escort and sixty left their cards for her. When she went to such summer resorts as Saratoga the crowds at the hotel would form a lane through which she would might pass as they waited to view her going to and from her coach, and it is a Philadelphia tradition that when she visited that city one of the schools was closed earlier than the usual hour to give the young girls a chance to see the famous belle. Indeed, women looked upon her with an admiration which they seldom accord to beauties.

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it; then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Cream Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect it from the shoe. As a general treatment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequalled. For sale by J. W. Gayle, druggist.

GAINES' STABLE PRECINCT.
The above precinct, in the north-eastern part of the city, has an unenviable reputation for election irregularities—but not wholly alone in this respect. We alluded heretofore to some of the irregularities of last year's election.

This year the following officers were appointed in this precinct to conduct the registration and election: Frank Rogers as judge for the Democrats, and Wm. Wells for the Republicans. Taylor Dailly was appointed as the Democratic sheriff and John D. O'Conner as Republican clerk.

Wells and Conner did not appear to act and Geo. Samples, Democrat, was elected in place of Wells and Thos. J. Hutchison, sr., in place of Conner.

Rogers seems to have done most of the registering as less than two dozen of the 34 voters entered appear to be in his handwriting. A number of errors occurred in the entries—some colored voters were registered as whites. In others the wrong residence was given and the following names of voters who claim to have registered do not appear on the registry: Jim Browder, 18 Elk Alley; Ed Taylor, Holmes street; Harry Morehead, Workhouse alley; Douglas Perry, St. Clair street; Geo. H. Mitchell, 539 Clinton; Wm. Linn; Wash Graves, 529 High.

Whether there are other omitted names is not yet discovered. One reputable citizen states that when he registered, the only officer in the room was Rogers, the clerk being on the pavement outside. Since registration the clerical errors have on notice, but who claim to have registered and are not on the books will lose their votes.

THINGS TO AVOID TUESDAY.

Avoid getting excited and engaging in angry discussions. The time for talk of that kind has passed. Be careful to know that you are right in all you do and say, and then do and say it all quietly and firmly. The excited and angry man nearly always does some foolish thing, and then the other fellow gets the advantage by having a cool and clear head.

Avoid, above all things, filling up on "booze." Booze is always and on all occasions a bad agency to have around on election day. Besides, the State law forbids any one to SELL, LOAN, OR GIVE to any voter spirituous, vinous or malt liquors on election day.

Avoid crowding nearer than the fifty feet the law requires for the open space around the polling places.

Avoid engaging in any controversy with the challengers of each party. They have been placed there by their committees and have been given instructions as to parties subject to challenge. When the challenge has been made, see that memoranda is kept of all the proceedings, pro and con, but don't discuss the matter excitedly. It is the duty of every citizen to go quietly to the polls, vote his sentiments, and then assist any of his neighbors, who have the legal right to vote, to cast their votes. But there is no necessity for getting excited and saying and doing things that are not right.

Above all let every one remember that we are Kentuckians and that no honest man would claim a right to vote himself and then deny that right to any other man who is equally as legally entitled to vote as he is.

The right to vote covers the right to have that vote counted as cast. Act then, on Tuesday, as honest Kentuckians should act, and then there will be no just cause of complaint.

While Messrs. T. Hiter Crockett and J. H. Mr. Polsgrove was not hurt beyond being considerably jarred. Mr. Crockett was not so fortunate. His chin was badly cut and his side bruised up. These gentlemen were picked up by the men on the handcar and brought back to town.

Dr. Robinson and Mr. Frank Dally were sent out to fill the appointments of Messrs. Crockett and Polsgrove.

CIVIL LIBERTY.

[By Col. Wm. Murray.]
Editor of the Roundabout:
"On the 30th of December, 1776, Washington was invested by Congress with the full powers of a dictator." How did this great power, will be seen below.

"Liberty is pledged to liberty; they are indissolubly allied in this great cause, it is the alliance between God and Nature, immutable, eternal as the light in the firmament of heaven!"

A few days subsequent to the 18th of April, 1775, Congress appointed Washington "to be general-in-chief of all the forces of the united colonies, etc., to defend American liberty, and to repulse every attack directed against it." He did his work well.

"Washington had kept up hostilities during the rough campaign of 1775. Many a time he had thought the game lost, and he had found himself under the necessity of abandoning posts he had mastered to fall back upon Philadelphia." What will you do if Philadelphia is taken, he was asked? "We will retire beyond the Susquehanna, and then, if necessary, beyond the Alleghenies, answered the General without hesitation. On the 7th of April, 1778, the Duke of Richmond proposed in the House of Lords the recall of all the forces, land and sea, which were fighting in America. The resolution of the Duke of Richmond had been rejected.

"When this news arrived in America, Washington was seriously uneasy. He had to keep up an incessant struggle against the delays and the jealousies of Congress; it was by dint of unyielding efforts and unwavering perseverance that he succeeded in obtaining the necessary supplies for his army. To see men without clothes to cover their nakedness, he exclaimed, without blankets to lie upon, without victuals and often without shoes (for you might follow their track by the blood that trickled from their feet), advancing through ice and snow, and taking up their winter quarters, at Christmas, less than a day's march from the enemy, in a place where they have not to shelter them either houses or huts, but such as they have thrown up themselves, to see these men doing all this without a murmur, is an exhibition of patience and obedience such as the world has rarely seen. Let us accept nothing short of independence, he wrote at once to his friends; we can never forget the outrages to which Great Britain has made us submit; a peace on any other conditions would be a source of perpetual disputes. If Great Britain, urged on by her love for tyranny, were to seek once more to bend our necks beneath her iron yoke, and she would do so, you may be sure, for her pride and her ambition are indomitable." (What pride and ambition is there in Kentucky, this day? That of Great Britain, our fathers threw off at Yorktown.) "The history of the War of Independence, a history of hopes deceived, said Washington. Washington was condemned to inaction. Our position is not sufficiently brilliant, he wrote to M. de La Fayette, to justify our putting pressure upon Count de Rochambeau; I shall continue our arrangements, however, in the hope of more fortunate circumstances. The American army was slow in getting organized, obliged, as it had been, to fight incessantly and make head against constantly recurring difficulties; it was getting organized, however; the example of the French, the discipline which prevailed in the auxiliary corps, the good understanding thenceforth established among the officers, helped Washington in his difficult task. From the first the superiority of the general (Washington) was admitted by the French as well as by the Americans; naturally, and by the mere fact of the gifts he had received from God, Washington was always and everywhere chief of the men placed within his range and under his influence.

"The King's soldiers are to be placed exclusively under the orders of the General-in-Chief, M. Girard, the French Minister in America, had said, on the arrival of the auxiliary corps."

"Two things, great and difficult as they may be, are a man's duty and may establish his fame. To support infortune and be sturdily resigned to it; to believe in the good and trust in it perseveringly." (This was Washington.)

"If ever cause were just and had a right to success, it was of the English Colonies which rose in insurrection to become the United States of America. Opposition, in their case, preceded insurrection. Their opposition was founded on historic right and on facts, on rational right and on ideas. It was in the war between England and France, for the possession of Canada, that the Americans made the first trial of their strength. There is a sight as fine and not less salutary than that of a virtuous man at grips with adversity (Washington); it is the sight of a virtuous man at the head of a good cause and securing its triumph. (Washington at Yorktown.)

Winter of 1777—Army in winter quarters at Valley Forge—At this time a party was formed in Congress to remove the commander-in-chief. Whilst these combinations of intrigue and ambition were progressing, the sufferings of the army were not ameliorated, and they at length drew from the commander (Washington) a communication to Congress of unrepentant plainness and energy. He (Washington) stated his conviction that unless some great change took place in the commissary's department, the army would inevitably be reduced to starvation or dissolution; that there was not in the camp a single head of cattle to be slaughtered, and not more than twenty-five barrels of flour, nor could the commissary tell when any might be expected; and that three or four days of bad weather would prove their destruction; that there were near 8,000 men in camp unfit for duty, because they were barefooted and otherwise naked, besides those confined in the hospitals and in farm houses on the same account. He charged it home to those who had remonstrated against his going into winter quarters, that they knew the uselessness of the troops from ocular demonstration. I can assure those gentlemen, said he, that it is much easier and less distressing to draw remonstrances in a comfortable room, by a good fire, than to occupy a cold, bleak hill, and sleep under frost and snow without clothes or blankets; however, although they seem to have little feeling for the naked and distress of sold ere, I feel superfluently sorry for them, and from my soul pity those miseries which it is not in my power either to relieve or prevent." (But they were fighting for liberty, independence and freedom. They knew how to suffer, endure and survive all for liberty, immortal liberty. Now we are told these things are old, dead and passed away, and do not apply to Kentucky at this time. Ignorance, ignorance in its worst form.) June 28, Battle of Monmouth was fought—"After a keen contested action, both armies, overpowered by fatigue and excessive heat of the day, suspended the combat on the approach of evening as by mutual consent. Washington, wrapped in his cloak, lay that night on the field in the midst of his soldiers, ready to renew the battle in the morning; but the enemy, under cover of the night, retired in silence, leaving two hundred and forty-nine of their dead on the field. The British army encamped at Sandy Hook, and sailed to New York, and the Americans once more took a position on the banks of the Hudson."

"The pernicious divisions and factions in Congress (Kentucky Legislature past few years) were fomented and increased until the prospect of a happy issue appeared to the chief more gloomy than at any former period. I have seen this dependence even for a moment, the hours which America has styled her gloomy ones; but I have beheld no day since the commencement of hostilities, when I have thought her liberties in such dangers as present. (How about Kentucky's liberties at the present?) Friends and foes seem now to combine to pull down the goodly fabric we have hitherto been raising at the expense of so much time, blood and treasure (how true in Kentucky to-day); and unless the bodies politic (the people) will exert themselves to bring things back to first principles, correct abuses, and punish our internal foes, inevitable ruin must follow. Indeed, we seem to be hurrying so fast to destruction, that I am filled with sensations, to which have been a stranger until these three months. Our enemies behold with exultation and joy, how effectually we labor for their benefit; and from being in a state of absolute despair, and on the point of evacuating America, are now on tiptoe."

"Washington, after providing for the defense of the posts on the Hudson, led his army down the west side of that river, so as to mask his intention by exciting apprehensions for Staten Island and it was not until he had passed the Delaware, that his real object was suspected by the British commander."

"Lord Cornwallis threw himself into Yorktown; on the 30th of September the place was invested. All defense became impossible. Lord Cornwallis in vain attempted to escape; his ranks reduced, on the 17th of October, to eight hundred men, he capitulated more humiliating than that of Saratoga—8,000 men laid down their arms. Lord Cornwallis was ill of grief and fatigue. Gen. O'Hara, who took his place, tendered his sword to Count de Rochambeau; the latter stepped back, and pointing to General Washington, said aloud, 'I am your auxiliary.' In receiving the English general's sword, Washington was receiving the pledge of his country's independence."

"Washington, who led the army of independence, whose great heart resisted the appalling adversities of the revolution, who stood upon the banks of the Delaware and above the roar of the elements, heard the call of patriotic duty, who led his little column to the mouth of the Patuxent at Trenton; who led the feeble colonies like Moses at the head of the tribes in the wilderness, but who, more favored than the great captain of Israel, was permitted from the plains of Yorktown to enter into full possession of liberty; who stands now and will stand forever as a sublime and inapproachable example of virtue and love of country."

"The drama of the revolution closed within her border (Virginia's borders). The spirit of American liberty here first took assurance of safety, and a permanent existence."

Kentucky is Virginia's first born, entitled to the birthright, and the blessing. Coming Tuesday, she will speak, by the inherent right of her people, at the polls. Will she endorse Washington, Jefferson, Patrick Henry, and Yorker, then the progress of liberty is as secure as the battlefield of Bunker Hill.

"When day dawned on their independence, the great secret of free government was no longer a secret to them. They had learned it, and learned it forever in the high and holy inspiration of battles fought for the inherent right to govern themselves. Their wisdom then succeeded their swords, and the American Constitution became the offspring of the American Revolution and inherited all its ideas."

As the negotiations for peace advanced, the irritation of the army increased. Washington saw the gathering storm, and determined to remain with the troops and give the weight of his influence to preserve the tranquility of the country, although his presence in the camp had otherwise ceased to be necessary. In a private letter to the secretary of war, after expressing his conviction that the officers would return to private life with alacrity, could they be placed in suitable circumstances he adds, "When I see such a number of men goaded by a thousand stings of reflection on the past, and anticipation of the future, about to be turned into the world, soured by penury, and what they call ingratitude of the public; involved in debt, without one farthing of money to carry them home, after having spent the flower of their days, and many of them their patrimonies, in establishing the freedom and independence of their country; and having suffered everything which human nature is capable of enduring on this side of death. I repeat it, when I reflect on these irritating circumstances, unattended by one thing to soothe their feelings, or brighten the gloomy prospect, I can not avoid apprehending that a train of evils will follow of a very serious nature."

"The storm was stilled; the army was disbanded; and on the 4th of December, the chief bid adieu to his officers in New York—their separation was solemn and affecting; the thoughts and feelings of the party, too intense for utterance—were expressed only by the silent tear, the warm grasp of the hand, and the quick pulsation of heart pressed to heart."

"Every duty of the station to which he (Washington) had been appointed, being now fulfilled, Washington hastened to Annapolis, where Congress was then in session, and on the 29th, at an audience appointed for the purpose, he returned his commission to the hands from which he had received it. Thus displaying the sublime spectacle of a triumphant warrior in the fullness of his fame, divesting himself of power (dictator) and dedicating the laurels he had won, upon the altar of his country. By his skill, firmness, perseverance and industry; and by the happy union of prudence with courage, and correct judgment with a spirit of enterprise, he had given liberty, peace, and a name among nations to his country (but it is said these things are old and out of date, and do not now apply to Kentucky. Washington is dead, and so are his virtues); but by this last act of public virtue, he consummated his own glory, and changed mankind's idea of political greatness."

Kentucky was yet unborn, and it is not to be expected, any of these things should apply to her, they apply to (13) colonies, and not to Kentucky. So say the wise and intellectual giants hereabout to-day.

"What madness is this? Where, on this side of the ocean, has been found such a monstrous principle of government (as exists in Kentucky-to-day)? Its adoption would carry us back to the days of King George, and as fatally subvert liberty as if Cornwallis had triumphed on the plains of Yorktown."

Will Kentuckians endorse Washington or Cornwallis? Tuesday night's returns will tell.

How will the sun of the 19th century forever set upon Kentucky? How will the sunrise of the 20th century look down upon Kentucky? She must decide, Washington or Cornwallis, which will it be?

PUT IT THERE.

Put your stencil in the CIRCLE under the device of your party.

This is the difference between the new and old law. The old law had a square all around the device and the stencil was placed in the square. Now it goes in the circle.

Secrets.

Women can keep secrets. They often keep secret for a long time the fact that they are suffering from drains, inflammation, ulceration, or female weakness. But they can't keep the secret very long, because the hollow eyes, cheeks that have lost their freshness, and the irritability which comes from sorely tried nerves, all conspire to publish the story of suffering. The usual motive for such secrecy, dread of indelicate questions and offensive examinations, is removed by Dr. Pierce's method. Diseases of the womanly organs are perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Sick women can consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., by letter free.

"Your wonderful medicine, 'Favorite Prescription,' writes Dr. R. V. Pierce, 'is a God-sent to weak and sickly women, restoring good health without subjecting their weak nerves to the shock of an examination. I was all run down in health, could not work but a short time without resting. Was very nervous and had a very poor appetite. Dr. R. V. Pierce and his wife, Dr. R. V. ### THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

The following proclamation was issued on Monday by the President:

It has pleased Almighty God to bring our nation in safety and honor through another year. The works of religion and charity have everywhere been manifest. Our country, through all its extent, has been blessed with abundant harvests. Labor and the great industries of the people have prospered beyond all precedent. Our commerce has spread over the world. Our power and influence in the cause of freedom and enlightenment have extended over distant seas and lands. The lives of our official representatives and many of our people in China have been marvelously preserved. We have been generally exempt from pestilence and other great calamities and even the tragic visitation which overwhelmed the city of Galveston made evident the sentiments of sympathy and Christian charity by virtue of which we are one united people.

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do hereby appoint, and set apart Thursday, the 29th of November next, to be observed by all the people of the United States, at home or abroad, as a day of thanksgiving and praise to Him who holds the nations in the hollow of His hand. I recommend that they gather in their several places of worship and devoutly give Him thanks for the prosperity wherewith He has endowed us, for seed time and harvest, for the valor, devotion and humanity of our armies and navies and for all His benefits to us as individuals and as a nation, and that they humbly pray for the continuance of His Divine favor, for concord and amity with other nations and for righteousness and peace in all our ways. In witness whereof I have here-unto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 29th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1900, and of the Independence of the United States the 125th.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

LAW GOVERNING THIS ELECTION.

The following is the State law (known as House Bill No. 19) which applies to the election to be held on Tuesday next. Let everybody take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

"Sec. 15. Any person or persons who shall unlawfully attempt to prevent, or prevent, any voter from casting his ballot, or shall attempt to, or intimidate, any person or other so as to prevent him from casting his ballot, or who shall unlawfully interfere with the officers of election in the discharge of their duties as such, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, be confined in the penitentiary for a period of years, of not less than one nor more than five years, for each offense. The fact that the person or persons so offending may be an officer or officers of the Federal government, or of the State, or any district, county, town or city thereof, or of election, shall not relieve them of the responsibility or penalty of the violation of this section."

This law also comes under the jurisdiction of the Federal courts as decided by the Supreme Court in the McCoy case from Indiana.

JUST SO.

The Court of Appeals, on Wednesday, through Judge Paynter, handed down a decision denying the right of the Republican Minor State Officers to dismise their appeal from Judge Cantrill's decision awarding those offices to the Democrats, and affirming Cantrill's decision.

The opinion did not go into the merits of the case, but simply decided that the award of the State Board of Election Commissioners was final.

Judges Guffy, Burnham and Durrelle dissented. The action of the majority of the court was discounted long ago.

A BEAUTIFUL IMPROVEMENT

For six months work has been going on at the Christian Church of this city, the final completion of which will be celebrated at the regular service to-morrow. One who has not observed carefully what was being done will be astonished at the outcome. Such a transformation in the interior of both the chapel and the auditorium would not have been thought possible. We are free to say that we have never seen improvements more tasteful or better adapted to the purposes intended.

In order to secure a modern, up-to-date primary classroom, a new addition of fifteen by thirty feet has been put to the front of the chapel, a sliding partition serving the purpose of separating it from the main portion of the room, or of connecting it therewith when so desired. The chapel has been newly painted in attractive tints, provided with a new wainscoting, a polished hardwood floor, of quartered oak, an additional chandelier and a paneled ceiling of elaborate pattern, all of which combine to make it beautiful in a measure to which a word-description can hardly do justice. To be fully appreciated it must be seen.

But handsome as the chapel is, the auditorium far exceeds it. To start with, all plans looked to the admission of increased light. The new Masonic Temple, recently erected, had cut off the light on the south side, and the improvement to be made sought first of all to provide against that deficiency. Entire new windows of a stained glass in light and delicate hues were put in. Large panes of figured artist glass were placed over the inner doors, at the front of the church, and to complete the whole effect the walls and ceiling were painted in shades to carry out this great primary object.

A high paneled wainscoting of polished oak surrounds the entire room. Hard wood frames, supported by handsome pillars, arch all the windows, which thus harmonize the whole auditorium with the alcove above the pulpit platform and give it an air of churchly elegance most imposing.

New hard wood steps clear across the platform, lead from the floor to the pulpit, while new oak doors, swinging both ways, lead from the vestibule into the auditorium. The vestibule has been finished in paneled wood, both in walls and ceiling, and the floor is a beautiful mosaic, the only one, if we mistake not, in the city. The exterior woodwork of the church is newly painted, the stone steps leading up to it have been placed in perfect order, while a new granite sidewalk now runs clear along the church lot.

It is indeed a beautiful improvement, of which our little city may well be proud, and reflects great credit on Mr. Leo Oberwarth, who planned and superintended the entire work, upon Mr. W. B. Bridgeford, who did the painting, and upon Mr. Lafayette Wells and his assistants, who did the carpentry. The church is even handsomer by night than by day, when illuminated by the one hundred and sixty soft electric lights which brighten it in every nook and corner. To-morrow will be a great day with the congregation when it occupies its beautiful auditorium for the first time.

It is well to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will heal a burn and stop the pain at once. It will cure eczema and skin diseases and ugly wounds and sores. It is a certain cure for piles. Counterfeits may be offered you. See that you get the original DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. South & Longmoor, W. McKee Hardie.

STILL IN IT.

By a letter from the Philippines, written to the Cincinnati Enquirer by Mr. Tom Collier, we learn that Mr. Carroll M. Walcott, of this city, but now belonging to the 31st Regiment U. S. V. I., is editing the Matti Bolo, a newspaper published as Matti. He gives some lively clippings from the paper, which are in Carroll's inimitable style.

Geo. A. Points, Upper Sandusky, Ohio, writes: "I have been using Foley's Honey and Tar for hoarseness and find it is the best remedy. It stopped the cough immediately and relieved all soreness." South & Longmoor, W. McKee Hardie.

INTERESTING MEETING.

Rev. M. B. Adams, of this city, is conducting an interesting meeting at Bethel Baptist Church, located on the Owenton pike, some seven miles from the city. He reports a large congregation and increasing interest. He is assisting the pastor, Rev. L. D. Stucker.

OLD PAPERS.

Mr. James Johnson, of this county, brought to our office on Monday morning, some rare old accounts and receipts dating back to 1820, 1825 and 1828. They show the vast improvement in the quality of paper used now over that used then, but as to the handwriting it is a lamentable fact that we don't write as well now as they did then.

To-day take Foley's Honey and Tar. It positively prevents pneumonia or other serious results. It may be too late to-morrow. South & Longmoor, W. McKee Hardie.

DELIVERS ADDRESS.

Reverend Admiral John Crittendon Watson delivered a short but earnest address on Sunday, at the rooms of the Louisville Y. M. C. A. His testimony to the good work done by this organization in the navy and in the Philippines was very gratifying.

Admiral Watson is an earnest and humble Christian gentleman.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Messrs. J. B. & A. D. Blanton, the messengers and managers of the Capital City Opera House, have arranged to have a special wire run onto the stage of the opera house and the returns of the election will be received and read as fast as they come in on Tuesday night next. The small sum of 25 cents admission will be charged.

DEATHS.

WILLIAMS—In Russellville, Arkansas, on Monday, October 26, 1900, Mr. Jacob Williams, aged 78 years. The deceased was a brother of Dr. U. V. Williams, of this city, and for a number of years was a prominent citizen of Bridgeport, this county. Some five or six years ago he removed to Arkansas to make his home with his children, several of whom had removed to that State to reside. He leaves quite a large circle of relatives and friends in this city and county to mourn his loss.

LOTS SOLD.

Messrs. L. B. Marshall & Co., agents for the Ascension Episcopal Church, sold the lots on Mero and Wilkinson streets, known as the Harvie lots, on Tuesday afternoon at public sale. They were all bought by Mr. M. Busam at a total price of $2,175 equal to cash.

J. W. Bryan, of Lowder, Ill., writes: "My little boy was very low with pneumonia. Unknown to the doctor we gave him Foley's Honey and Tar. The result was magical and puzzled the doctor, as it immediately stopped the racking cough and he quickly recovered." South & Longmoor, W. McKee Hardie.

CENSUS FIGURES COMPLETED.

The official announcement has been given out from the Census Bureau, at Washington City, that the total number of inhabitants of the United States, as shown by the new census, are 78,295,220, or a gain in the ten years since 1890, of 18,225,404, an increase of nearly 21 per cent.

The State of Kentucky has a population of 2,147,174, a gain of about 16 per cent.
The increase in the country as a whole is a marvelous one, and that in this State is a gratifying one considering the adverse circumstances of the last few years.

FALLS CITY PARTIALLY DESTROYED.

At 2:50 o'clock on Sunday morning the Kentucky River Packet Co.'s staunch steamer, Falls City, was partially destroyed by fire while lying at the wharf at Louisville.

The vessel had been newly painted and cleaned up during the month that she had been forced to lay up on account of the low water in the Ohio river. It was the expectation that she would start on Monday morning as the rise in the Ohio river had furnished enough water to get over the Grassy Flats, near Bedford.

The flames were discovered by young Abrams, a clerk on the boat, and before the fire could be subdued the whole upper deck was burned away, inflicting a loss of some $7,000, with partial insurance. It is supposed that the fire started from a spark coming from a locomotive on the C. & O. railroad.

It is a noticeable fact that there has been water enough in the Kentucky river this whole season for this vessel to run, while the Ohio has not had enough on the bars and flats for her to get over.

DASTARDLY.

On Sunday night last, just after Dr. W. Lee Crutcher (who lives on the Louisville pike), had gone to church, some dastardly scoundrel, who was masked, tried to enter the house where there was no one but the Doctor's daughters.

One of the young ladies got her father's gun, and in attempting to get it ready for action, it went off, blowing a big hole in the floor of the room and frightening the man away.

Every effort should be put forth to find the scoundrel, and, if found, the heaviest penalty of the law should be enforced upon him.

BAD ACCIDENT.

Young Coleman had his face and hands scratched and bruised but was not otherwise hurt much.

MARRIAGE AT EVERGREEN CHURCH ON HALLOWE'EN.

BLAKEMORE-TERRY.

The moon, full-robed and bright, seemed to shine with gladness to illumine the occasion, and the stars to have retitrined their lamps to await, like the wise virgins, the coming of the bridegroom.

Long before the appointed time to open the doors, the churchyard was filled with an anxious throng of well-wishers, and when the doors were opened a scene of beauty never excelled met the gaze of the expectant throng. Brilliantly lighted, the decorations dazzled the eye and overwhelmed the imagination. Huge streamers of evergreen, festooned with hundreds of pink chrysanthemums, extended from the ceiling to every portion of the room in graceful curves. The chandeliers were decked most elaborately and beneath them the beauty and the bridal arch. The altar, filled with palms and pot plants, and banded so as to conceal the organ and the organist, Miss Emma Payne, who, upon the arrival of the party, struck the chords of the bridal march, to the melodious strains of which first came down the long aisle the ushers, Mr. Clarence Julian and Mr. June Gill; following them Mr. Carl Wilson and Mr. James Farmer, then followed the maid of honor, Miss Ann Crutcher, of Richmond, Ky., carrying a huge bunch of pink chrysanthemums; following her the bride-elect, Miss Lyde Terry, on the arm of her brother, Mr. Lister Terry, while simultaneously the groom, Mr. George Hampton Blakemore, escorted by the best man, Mr. Ellie Gaines, of Louisville, descended the side aisle, meeting under the bridal arch in front of the altar. The venerable Rev. B. F. Hungerford (who had married the bride's parents) advanced and performed a most beautiful ceremony, closing with the benediction, that reminded them that, standing under that arch, like a rainbow of promise, decorated with flowers, an emblem of the hearts best and affectionate impulses, entwined with evergreens, an emblem of immortality and perpetual fidelity, so might their lives flow on a perpetual stream of love, duty and happiness.

To the slow and measured steps of the organ, they filed out of church in reverse order of entrance, adjourning to the groom's mother's residence, Mrs. Delia Blakemore, where the bridal party were entertained.

"May she, when time has sunk him into years, Love her old man and cherish his white hairs. Nor he deceive her charms, though age, decay, But think each happy sun his bridal day." W.

THE NORTH BAY.

The view here shown of the north bay of Delaware Park, which is included in the site of the Pan-American Exposition to be held at Buffalo next year, is taken from a point north of the site of the Albright Art Gallery. This is destined to be in view of its magnificent surroundings, in the near future, one of the most beautiful reaches of water in the country. The bridge in the picture, graceful and substantial as it is, is to be replaced by a far more imposing and ornate structure. The bridge crosses a narrow neck in the park lake and carries the broad and beautiful driveway which leads from the main southern entrance at Forest Avenue to the Exposition buildings. On the north side of the North Bay will stand the fine substantial and permanent building to be erected by the State of New York, and which will become, after the Exposition, the home of the valuable collection of Indian, colonial and pioneer relics and library owned by the Buffalo Historical Society. Opposite the New York State Building on the South Side of the Bay will stand the Albright Art Gallery, which is to serve the purpose of the Exposition for the Department of fine arts. This building is the gift of Mr. J. J. Albright, of Buffalo, to his fellow citizens. It is to be strictly fireproof, of white marble, in the Ionic style of architecture, and will stand on a broad terrace sustained by a wall of granite blocks. The building will be 250 feet long by about 150 feet wide, and is to be of such a substantial character as to withstand the elements for many generations. It will become the public art gallery of Buffalo Fine Arts Academy having the custody of the property.

THEN AND NOW.

What is probably one of the copies of the first railway guide ever issued in the United States is in possession of the Passenger Department of the Chicago & North-Western Railway. This quaint little book was printed in the Reflector office in Schenectady, N. Y., in 1836, and its title proclaims it "A Western Traveler's Pocket Dictionary and Stranger's Guide." Its 96 tiny pages are 2 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches in size, bound in red covered boards. At the time this little guide appeared all the States through which the Chicago & North-Western Railway now operates, with the exception of Illinois, were territories, and the tide of immigration was just beginning to set toward the west. Chicago was a village, and it was not until twelve years later that her first railroad was begun to be built, which pioneer line is now a part of the great Chicago & North-Western system, operating 8,500 miles of first-class railway in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming, and running through trains daily between Chicago and San Francisco and Portland. This mighty empire has a population vastly greater than the whole nation possessed in the year 1836. The total population of the United States, as given in the Guide, was 9,185,028, confined to the territory east of the Mississippi river. Beyond was an unknown and unexplored wilderness.

The canals of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio were the chief means of transportation, both for people and commodities of commerce, as there were at 1,500 miles of railway in the republic at this time, while the mileage of the canals was considerably greater. Much of the space in the Guide was given to rates of freight and passenger traffic on the different canals, together with points about the best wagon roads in existence at that time.

It is but sixty-four years since this little book was printed, but centuries of progress have been compressed into this comparatively short time. The canal is but a memory, while thousands upon thousands of miles of steel bring the remotest regions of the nation within a few hours journey, and the subtle potency of the telegraph makes the whole world kin.

When you can not sleep for cough it is hardly necessary that anyone should tell you that you need a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to allay the irritation of the throat and make sleep possible. It is good. Try it. For Sale by J. W. Gayle, Druggist.

A GREAT WORK.

The National Magazine for October contains an illustrated article under the caption "Double-tracking a Trans-Continental Railway." This is an interesting story of the undertaking of the Chicago & North-Western Railway of double-tracking its main line between Chicago and Council Bluffs, which has been completed as far west as Carroll, and by the close of next year the entire distance is expected to be finished. The double track will not only greatly facilitate the handling of traffic, both freight and passenger, but by the elimination of curves and grades, will also shorten the distance between Chicago and Omaha.

In many places the old right of way will be abandoned and many engineering difficulties that appeared unsurmountable when the original line was built have been solved by the audacity of the modern engineer. The most notable feature of the work is at Boone, Iowa. The present line sweeps direct to the south after leaving Boone, following the course of the Des Moines river, which is crossed by a bridge a few miles below the town, making steep grades on both sides of the river. The new line, however, will run straight west, and crosses the Des Moines river over a mighty bridge that spans the Des Moines valley from bluff to bluff, a distance of more than half a mile.

The building of this bridge saves three miles in distance and abolishes two of the longest and steepest grades on the system.

During all the time that this great work has been in progress, there has been no interruption in the train service from one end of the line to the other.

A GREAT MEDICINE.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phillips, of Poteau, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by J. W. Gayle, Druggist.

LOOK OUT.

Some persons have an idea that the game law protecting quail has expired. This is a mistake. The open season does not commence until Nov. 15th. It only lasts until January 10th.

So look out, you sportsmen. The Frankfort Hunting Club will watch for violators of the law.

SIGMA NUS BANQUET MR. WOODS.

Mr. Clarence E. Woods was the guest of honor at a swell dinner Monday evening, tendered him by the active and alumni members of Zeta Chapter of Sigma Nu in honor of his recent re-election to the position of Grand Recorder of that order. The affair occurred at nine o'clock in the parlor of Richmond's Delmonico, Monsieur (Chuchigliani), and all the delicacies of the season were furnished by that popular caterer. At the conclusion of the consumption of Joe's culinary triumphs the following toasts were delivered:

Toastmaster—Thomas H. Pickles. Fifteen Years in Harness—Clarence E. Woods. Our Alumni—Leslie P. Evans. Phi Delta Theta—L. B. Herrington.

Messages From Our Friends—A. A. Talbot. Delta Kappa Epsilon—James Trumble.

A Georgia Poem—L. B. Green. Sigma Alpha Epsilon—Curry Dedman.

The Ladies—Thomas H. Pickles. It was a very pleasant occasion and thoroughly enjoyed by the Inter-fraternity gathering present.—Richmond Climax.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY IN CHICAGO.

Higgen Bros., the popular South Side druggists, corner 60th street and Wentworth avenue, say: "We sell a great deal of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and find that it gives the most satisfactory results, especially among children, for severe colds and croup." For sale by J. W. Gayle, Druggist.

PARADE AND SPEAKING.

The Democrats of this and adjoining counties had a parade and speaking in this city on Saturday. About 11 o'clock the various clubs paraded, headed by Saxton's band, from Lexington. There were about 600 horsemen and boys in the line.

At 2 o'clock the speaking was to have commenced at a stand in the public square, but a sprinkle of rain caused the managers to change the place to the Opera House. Several speakers entertained the crowd present.

The enthusiasm was not as pronounced as was expected.

After exposure of when you feel a cold coming on, take a dose of Foley's Honey and Tar. It never fails to cure, and will prevent pneumonia or consumption. Don't accept substitutes. Nothing so good. South & Longmire, W. McKee Hardie.
